

The Maddux School

September 18, 2020

Dear Maddux Families,

Today is one of the few days since this all started, that it feels as though there may be a light at the end of the tunnel. This journey has been long and filled with unexpected turns and barriers. We have worked hard to navigate it all, and for today, we are excited to be able to focus on the light at the end of the tunnel up ahead.

In the upcoming weeks, we will be sending out more specific information about what to expect on the days allocated to classroom set up, the return to campus orientation schedules and parent teacher conference schedules.

While many of our families are anxious to get back to campus, we recognize that there are some who will choose to continue on with the Distance Learning Plan. Upon return to campus, the Distance Learning plan will consist of live instruction in the areas of core academics and social emotional learning, as well as access to asynchronous lessons and activities. We are investigating what technologies and supports will help us streamline our ability to run a robust educational program both and in person and virtually. While we know that the landscape of things will likely change in the next few months, we are asking for families to make a commitment to one of the two instructional formats from October 5th through the Thanksgiving Break. Classroom cohorts will be finalized once we have commitment from all families as to their instructional format decision. Please read through all of the included information and let us know which format your child will participate in by Friday September 25, 2020.

We know that this journey is nowhere near over and that there will continue to be unexpected turns and hurdles to clear. Despite this, we are confident that we will continue to move forward because of the endless support, encouragement and collaboration that exists in The Maddux School Community.

TOGETHER OR APART...WE ARE MADDUX AT HEART!
